

Phishing Assessment

Why is a Phishing Assessment a good idea?

According to Verizon's 2021 Data Breach Investigations Report, 85% of cyber security breaches involve some form of human element. Humans are seen as the 'weakest link' and phishing attacks aim to exploit that weakness: they are used to gain access to sensitive information or to deliver malware, such as ransomware, rendering systems unusable until a ransom is paid.

The Phishing Assessment is designed to test both technical defences and staff awareness levels, with a view to strengthening an organisation's security posture overall. Assessments can be tailored to your precise requirements, simulating what would happen in the event of a real phishing, spear phishing or whaling attack. We can follow up our findings with recommendations around physical IT security and end user training

As phishing techniques are constantly evolving regular assessments are an invaluable tool in helping organisations maintain high security awareness levels and manage cyber risk efficiently and cost-effectively.
